

INTRODUCTION TO POSTER SESSION

The Committee for the Promotion of Health and Honey, Inc is pleased to present the following series of numbered posters for your information and education. The posters are based on research or original articles previously published from the world's scientific literature. The careful reader will note that not all of the posters have a direct or obvious relationship to the consumption of honey. This is a critical fact not meant to confuse the reader. Some of these posters provide important foundational information upon which the health implications of honey, when consumed regularly, are based. The reader is guided by the comments provided by the editors which underscore these implications. Thank you for taking the time to view these posters. We respect and appreciate your comments and questions.

NOTE: Additional posters that are not part of this numbered series 1-16 are from presentations given at the First International Symposium on Honey and Human Health and contain information from previously published works. These posters have been prepared by the authors and/or the speakers themselves. References to these posters or their content in any media or reproductions must contain appropriate citations.

© Mike McInnes, MRPS and Ronald E Fessenden, MD, MPH, December 2007

The Committee for the Promotion of Honey and Health, Inc
www.prohoneyandhealth.com

For additional information please contact info@prohoneyandhealth.com
720-851-0386 (Office Phone)
303-840-7251 (Fax)